Tomorrows the day baby. I don't want to have to over think this for the next 2 weeks so I'm just going to RIP off the bandaid and do it. I took off tomorrow and Monday though just so I dont have to deal with the awkward first conversation right away. That'll at least give HR a few days to figure out

On-the-Job Discrimination: Pregnancy Discrimination

Discriminatory conduct based on pregnancy or pregnancy-related conditions is a form of gender-based discrimination. The Civil Rights Act of 1964, in combination with the Civil Rights Act of 1991, serves to protect the rights of various groups of people from discrimination in the workplace based on membership in a protected category. Sex is a protected category. The Civil Rights Act of 1991 clarified the scope of protection and remedies available to victims of discrimination. Several federal agencies work closely with state governments and employers to prevent discrimination in the workplace. These include the Department of Labor and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Rules:

- Discrimination on the basis of pregnancy, childbirth or related medical conditions is unlawful under federal law.
- In addition, employers may not discriminate against pregnant women on the basis of marital status. Pregnancy-related benefits must be extended to married and single workers alike.
- Employers may not refuse to hire a pregnant woman unless the pregnancy would prevent her from performing major functions of her job.
- If the employee becomes temporarily unable to perform her job due to pregnancy-related conditions, the employer must treat her the same as any temporarily disabled employee. For example, the employer may provide modified tasks, alternative assignments, disability leave or leave without pay.

It's ok. I feel like I need to be honest because I haven't really slept more than 2 hours at a time in the last few months and I think its stress thats causing insomnia and its killing me not being able to sleep and feel like a normal human. I'm incredibly stressed out right now. I know you are too and thats why I haven't said anything but I can't just keep this to myself anymore. Nothing is working out the way I thought it would and it's really weighing on me. I have like $200 left to my name and I haven't been in the situation since I was 14,

I can't even pay my bills this month and its keeping me awake at night. I've been applying for anything to at least tie me over for now and nothing is coming from it.

I did not expect to ever have to file for unemployment in my life nor did I expect for it to take months and still not have an answer from them.

I feel completely useless as a partner and that's not fair to you that you have to work so hard because you have extra roommates leaching off of you right now. I have never in my adult life not been financially stable and I'm really struggling with it.

This should be a really happy time in our lives but it is nothing but stress and uncertainty right now. I'm stressing out that I didnt just take Ramsey's hush money even though I know it's not the right thing to do. I wouldn't be up all night concerned about paying my insurance and putting groceries in the fridg... if I could have just taken the bus off

I'm never one to stress because I'm always in control but I feel like I have zero control over anything right now and it sucks. It sucks more knowing its 100% my fault that we're even in this situation. You don't deserve having to be worried about picking up my slack and I'm really sad about that.

Sorry for the mental dump and sorry for not being able to pull my weight right now.

Is it weird that the only person that reaches out consistently from Ramsey is Lauren?

Lauren is their Daniel's admin. Daniel is their general counsel.....

4:06 PM Or am I just reading to much into that?!

Hmmmm. I'd be careful. Very careful.
